CARL SCHEER

President and General Manager

Carl Scheer is a truly remarkable man. Just a little over four years ago—June 3, 1974 to be exact—he arrived in Denver and took over the reins of the Denver Nuggets.

At the time of Scheer's arrival, the Nuggets were struggling. The team itself was in last place in the ABA and there was some talk of the franchise folding. In just one season, he transformed the franchise into one of the best in the ABA, and today the Denver Nuggets organization is recognized as one of the most successful in all of professional sports.

One of Scheer's first moves upon coming to Denver was to bring Larry Brown in as the new head coach. He quickly made some key changes in player personnel that made the team more than merely competitive. On the court, the team had been picked to finish last once again, but instead, Denver posted a phenomenal 65-19 record to complete one of the most amazing turnabouts in pro sports. Perhaps more importantly, the team played before 29 sellout crowds, including 16 in succession. Professional basketball was alive and well in Denver.

At the same time Scheer was able to secure local ownership for the franchise, and today he joins more than 30 other Nuggets' owners to form a group of Colorado's most successful and respected business leaders. He also was instrumental in completing the NBA-ABA merger on June 17, 1976.

Denver's record in the past four seasons is the best in pro basketball. The Nuggets have won 223 games and lost only 109 during that stretch. They have captured three division titles, one in the ABA and two in the NBA. They have advanced to the playoffs four times in succession.

During this period of consistent success on the court, the Nuggets have also realized tremendous success at the box office. During the last two seasons alone, the Nuggets have played before 1,360,806 fans at home, tops in the league.

Despite this list of accomplishments, Scheer has yet to realize his biggest dream, that of bringing an NBA championship to Denver. It's that dream that continually motivates Scheer to take whatever steps he deems necessary for the improvement of the team. He simply won't be satisfied until that goal is reached, and he'll keep working until he molds the proper ingredients needed to make the Nuggets the best team in the sport.

A native of Springfield, Mass., Scheer was an outstanding basketball and baseball player in both high school and college. He earned his bachelor's degree from Middlebury (Vt.) College and later graduated from the University of Miami (Fla.) Law School. After practicing law for seven years in Greensboro, N.C., he entered professional sports in 1968 with the NBA.

He spent two years as the NBA's assistant commissioner, a summer as president of the Buffalo Braves and four seasons as president of the ABA's Carolina Cougars prior to coming to Denver.

Scheer, who was voted the ABA's Executive-of-the-Year on three occasions, is a very active man in the Denver community. He has served on the boards of General Rose Hospital and Partners, as chairman for membership and fund raising drives for the American Cancer Research Center, the March of Dimes, Cystic Fibrosis and Muscular Dystrophy. He also serves as state chairman of the Colorado Olympic Fund, the fund raising arm of the United States Olympic Committee.

He and his wife, Marsha, have two children. They have recently constructed a new home in southeast Denver, and they expect to move in before the 1978-79 season gets underway.

LARRY BROWN

Head Coach

As he enters his seventh season as a basketball coach in the professional ranks, Larry Brown sports the best winning percentage among active pro coaches today.

Born in Brooklyn, N.Y. some 38 years ago, Brown has compiled a record of 327-173 for a winning percentage of 65.4. He has guided his teams to five divisional titles in six years as a head coach, one with the Carolina Cougars of the ABA, two with Denver in the ABA and two with the Nuggets in the NBA. His 1975-76 Denver team won the regular season ABA title.

Since assuming the coaching duties of the then Denver Rockets in 1974, Brown has compiled records of 65-19, 60-24, 50-32 and 48-34. His two teams at Carolina were 57-27 and 47-37.

It's really not surprising that Brown has been a winner as a coach because he was a winner as a player. A veteran of five seasons in the ABA, he played with the New Orleans Bucs, Oakland Oaks, Washington Caps, Virginia Squires and Denver Rockets before retiring from the active ranks.

Brown competed in four ABA playoffs and played a key role in Oakland's march to the playoff title in 1968-69. He performed in three ABA All-Star games, including the very first in 1968. He was named most valuable player in that contest. An unselfish player, he led the ABA in assists three times, and he holds the league's all-time single game assist record with 23.

Prior to becoming a pro, Brown played at the University of North Carolina and for the Akron Goodyear AAU team. He was a three-year letterman at North Carolina where he averaged 11.8 points in 56 games. He captained the Tar Heels in his senior year, a season in which he earned All-American and All-Atlantic Coast Conference honors.

Following his collegiate career, Brown played on the United States Olympic team that captured the Gold Medal at Tokyo. He put in three years with the Akron Goodyears, including 1964, when the Ohio club won the AAU championships at Denver.

A believer in fast-breaking, team-oriented, aggressive basketball, Brown's teams have been in the playoffs in each of his six campaigns as a professional bench boss. Now, he's seeking the ultimate. It would be fitting if Larry Brown were the man to bring the, thus far, elusive professional basketball championship to Denver.

Brown and his wife, Barbara, recently purchased a home in Boulder, Colo. They have three children.

DONNIE WALSH

Assistant Coach

Had it not been for Larry Brown, Donnie Walsh would probably be practicing law in the State of South Carolina these days.

A teammate of Brown's at the University of North Carolina, Walsh served as an assistant coach and chief basketball recruiter for head coach Frank McGuire at the University of South Carolina for 12 seasons. He retired from coaching following the 1976-77 campaign, however, and he was ready to enter private practice after passing the South Carolina Bar exam. That's where Brown entered the picture.

The Nuggets' persuasive bench boss convinced Walsh to give the professional ranks a try, and the would-be lawyer became a Denver assistant coach in August 1977. Neither man has regretted the move one bit.

A sharpshooting guard who scored 14 points per game while connecting on 55.9 percent of his field goal attempts as a senior at North Carolina, Walsh enjoyed a 52-20 record as freshman coach at South Carolina. He posted a 6-0 record as varsity coach, filling in when McGuire was ill. He's also unbeaten as a pro coach, having directed the Nuggets to a 109-106 victory over Boston last March when Brown was serving a one-game suspension.

Walsh and his wife, Judy, reside in Denver with their five children.

GEORGE IRVINE

Assistant Coach

A veteran of six years in the American Basketball Association, George Irvine became a full-time NBA assistant coach last year.

Irvine came to the Nuggets along with the rights to David Thompson from the Virginia Squires in 1975. He was injured in the pre-season, however, and played only three regular season games with Denver.

While on the injured list, Irvine served as the club's collegiate scout and a part-time assistant to coach Larry Brown. He was elevated to a full-time coaching spot last year.

Prior to his arrival in Denver, Irvine spent five seasons as a guard/forward with the Squires. An excellent shooter, he connected on 51.7 percent of his field goal attempts and 82.6 percent of his free throw shots while averaging 9.5 points per game as a professional.

The former University of Washington star — he still holds the school's career field goal percentage record at 56.1 percent — resides in Denver with his wife, Joan, and their son.

BOB TRAVAGLINI

Trainer/Traveling Secretary

Now in his third year as the Nuggets' trainer and traveling secretary, Bob "Chopper" Travaglini is a veteran trainer for professional sports teams.

Prior to his arrival in Denver, Chopper spent seven seasons with the American Basketball Association's Virginia Squires where he tended to the needs of players like Julius Erving, George Gervin and the Nuggets' Charlie Scott and Larry Brown.

Before he became involved with professional basketball, he served as trainer for the Philadelphia Bulldogs of the Continental Football League and the Pottstown (Pa.) Firebirds and Jersey Jets of the Atlantic Coast Football League.

Chopper also toured the Soviet Union as trainer for the Larry Brown-coached United States All-Star basketball team in 1974.

A native of Woodbury, N. J., he also served as trainer for the Denver Stars of Major League Rodeo.

DENVER-MILWAUKEE SERIES WRAP-UP

It took seven long games played before noisy, sellout crowds, but the Nuggets finally eliminated the Bucks to advance to the Western Conference finals. After winning the first two games at McNichols Arena and earning a split in the next two played at Milwaukee Arena, it appeared that Denver would win the series handily. But the stubborn Bucks erased a ten-point fourth quarter deficit to win game five at Denver, and then crushed the Nuggets in the sixth game at Milwaukee. That set the stage for the finale, and as it turned out, the Dave Thompson Show. With everything at stake, the Nuggets' superstar responded with 37 points, six rebounds, six assists and five blocked shots as Denver prevailed, 116-110.

DENVER-SEATTLE SERIES WRAP-UP

The Nuggets had the home court advantage in the Western Conference finals with Seattle, and when the SuperSonics stole that advantage by winning game two in Denver, they turned the whole series around. The Sonics won game three without too much difficulty and rallied from an eight-point half-time deficit to take a 3-1 edge after four contests. The Nuggets stayed alive by winning game five in Denver, but they couldn't stop the Sonics in the final game as a roaring crowd at the Seattle Center Coliseum exhorted the home team to a big 123-108 victory and a trip to the championship round against the Washington Bullets.

The National Basketball Association will have a new look as it launches its 33rd season in October. The Board of Governors approved a change of ownership between the Buffalo Braves and Boston Celtics during the off-season, and then allowed the Braves to relocate their franchise in San Diego, California. The new San Diego Clippers will compete in the Pacific Division of the Western Conference along with Los Angeles, Phoenix, Golden State, Portland and Seattle.

Detroit has been moved to the Central Division of the Eastern Conference from the Midwest Division of the Western Conference, and the NBA champion Washington Bullets will compete in the Atlantic Division of the Eastern Conference this year after playing in the East's Central Division for the past few seasons.

Philadelphia will be defending its title in the Atlantic Division, San Antonio will seek to repeat as Central Division champs, the Denver Nuggets will go after a third consecutive Midwest Division championship and the Portland Trail Blazers will be out to make it two straight titles in the Pacific Division.

The NBA's new look pertains to teams and individuals as well as the league's structure. In the Atlantic Division, Philadelphia attempted to strengthen its grip on first place by trading for Denver's Bobby Jones and Ralph Simpson, but the New York Knicks feel they've closed the gap by signing free agent center Marvin Webster. Meanwhile, in Boston, the Celtics added plenty of scoring punch by acquiring Billy Knight, Marvin Barnes and Nate Archibald from San Diego.

In the Central Division, the Houston Rockets made an attempt to swing the balance of power their way by signing free agent Rick Barry, formerly of Golden State.

Denver's Nuggets have won the Midwest Division in both of their NBA campaigns, and in an effort to stay one step ahead of the competition and present an even more formidable threat for the playoff title they obtained George McGinnis from Philadelphia and Charlie Scott from Los Angeles during the off-season. Indiana also figures to improve with new players such as Johnny Davis from Portland and Alex English from Milwaukee in the lineup.

The division which figures to feel the effects of off-season changes more than any other is the Pacific where the defection of Webster from Seattle, Barry from Golden State and the demands for trade of Portland's Bill Walton have made the division race a toss-up.

Four teams—Chicago, Detroit, Kansas City and San Diego—will have new coaches as they start the 1978-79 season. Larry Costello, who guided the Milwaukee Bucks to the NBA title in 1970-71, has taken over at Chicago; Dick Vitale, a highly successful mentor at the University of Detroit, has stepped into the pro ranks with the NBA's Pistons; Cotton Fitzsimmons, bench boss of the Buffalo Braves a year ago, has gone to Kansas City; and Gene Shue, who started last year as Philadelphia's coach, has taken charge of the new franchise in San Diego.

KOA RADIO, KWGN-TV TO AIR NUGGETS' ACTION

Complete radio and television coverage of the Denver Nuggets' 1978-79 season in the National Basketball Association will be handled again by KOA-Radio (850 KHz) and KWGN-TV, Channel 2.

KOA, which has carried Nuggets' basketball for the past two seasons, is beginning a new four-year contract with the club while KWGN is starting its fifth season of handling road television contests. KOA will provide coverage of all eight pre-season and 82 regular season contests. KWGN will televise a minimum of one pre-season tilt, 18 regular season contests and one "wild card" game.

Al Albert starts his fourth season as the radio and television play-by-play voice of the Nuggets. Bob Martin, KOA sports director, will provide the radio color commentary and will do the play-by-play when Albert switches to television. Steve Jones, a veteran of nine professional basketball seasons, will handle the television color commentary. Jones is also a color commentator for CBS Sports when the network begins full coverage of NBA action in January.
